

Indigenous Art

By Kheely Turner

We have commissioned Indigenous artist, Kheely Turner, a proud Wiradjuri and Ngiyampaa woman, to create an artwork that is available to all customers to use in branding collaborations with corporate logos.

Kheely's artwork can be printed on large variety of our products using the Digital, Transfer and Rotary printing methods.

This artwork can be cropped and re sized to your discretion to help fit any placement of a logo.

We would also recomend for logos printed over the artwork to have black or white trim to give it a great pop!

Please contact us in regards to finding the best probable product to have this printed on.

Kheely Turner

A proud Wiradjuri & Ngiyampaa woman.

Kheely Turner is an artist descendant of the Ngiyampaa and Wiradjuri peoples who have a connection to West Wyalong and areas of Ivanhoe, Lake Cargelligo and Cobar. She first experimented with art at a young age, completing a traditional styled sculpture for her major HSC artwork. Kheely utilises her art to maintain her connection to country and culture. It is her way of expressing and combining, education and appreciation of Aboriginal Culture and history.

Kheely has a unique way of telling stories through her art and each piece is individual and deeply personal to the client and artist.

Story of Artwork

This artwork depicts the connectedness between the organisation and the community it serves. The organisation is represented by the larger circles with the symbols of men and women gathered at a meeting place, they are joined to their communities by the white dotted line. Mother Earth is represented in the artwork through the hills, mountains and waterways that nourish us spiritually and physically.

Below are some examples of Kheely's artwork on our products.

Rotary Print

Using our in-house rotary printer can provide a rotary print around the bottle with a 10mm spacing. Perfect for any large images or logos. Be sure to include on your next drink bottle one of our NAIDOC artwork.

Digital Print

Digital printing is the process of printing fully customisable digital-based images. With variety in what you can print, perfect for a specialised design. Digital print on one of our Journals today and make the designing easy with our NAIDOC design.

Transfer Print

Transfer print is a simple heat process where a design printed on a piece of vinyl is transferred to the fabric using heat and high pressure. Kheely's print would look great on your next tote bag, blanket, picnic rug.
